Partnerships: projecting stability through cooperation

• Partners are part of many of NATO's core activities, from shaping policy to building defence capacity, developing interoperability and managing crises.

• In partnering with NATO, partners can:
  - gain access to advice and support as they reform and strengthen defence institutions and capacities;
  - prepare together for future operations and missions by participating in exercises and training;
  - contribute to current NATO-led operations and missions.

• Through partnerships, NATO and partners also pursue a broad vision of security:
  - fighting against corruption in the defence sector;
  - enhancing efforts to control or destroy arms, ammunition and unexploded ordnance.
